Safety in #s?

By Tulugaak of Omashu

The greater Omashu area has seen a rise in Earth Kingdom military presence. While many residents have mixed feelings about greater oversight in areas outside Ba Sing Se, it's clear that the increased policing has not brought about a drop in crime. In fact, arson, kidnapping, pickpocketing, vandalism, and vehicle theft have gone up recently. One could argue that it's not the military's job to police, and while that's true, they appear to be doing it anyway. Those of Fire Nation and Water Tribe ancestry appear at greater risk of being accosted by military.

As the government encroaches upon the privacy of its citizens, it is up to journalists to make the government's actions transparent. Omashu, you can count on your news team to find the facts about this issue and what that could mean for civilians. We will keep you updated as this story unfolds.

Lo Mein, Low Meal

By Tulugaak of Omashu

I recently got the chance to dine at Lover's Noodles. The ambience was serene with live music that didn't overstay its welcome. The menu was quite large, perhaps too large as quality varied as much as the decor. All that said, service was by far the worst part of the experience. The number of untrained staff was too high and it showed. When you are treating that special someone to a meal, you want things to go smoothly; and Lover's Noodles is too risky an option.
