

The Omashu Sun

Shining Light Upon the Kingdom

Postal Carriers Go Postal!

By Tulugaak Towtoongie

Earlier this week near The Cave of Two Lovers, a mother and child were assaulted by men and women dressed in Postal Police outfits. At the family's behest, we will keep the family anonymous. A group of civilians attempted to protect the family. The Cave collapsed during the struggle. The fracas spread to the nearby forest setting it ablaze.

The attackers absconded with the mother and child. The authorities have been pressed for comment, but no information further information has been provided at this time. The Omashu Sun will update this story as more information comes in. Until then, use caution around The Cave of Two Lovers.

Cave of Two Lovers

OP ED: Skin Cleanse Gets Mixed Reviews

By Tulugaak Towtoongie

I tried a new skin cleanse idea. After an invigorating steam to open my pores, hot ash fell upon my skin. I had hoped it would clean and exfoliate, but after wiping myself with a wet cloth, I found my skin to just be very ashy and dry. I would definitely recommend the steam portion, but I'll be sticking to cleaning with charcoal in the future.